

DEMOCRATIC PRINCIPLES AND MEASURES.

A strict construction of the Constitution, and no assumption of doubtful powers.
A diplomacy asking for nothing but what is clearly right and submitting to nothing wrong.
No connexion between the government and banks.
An ad valorem revenue tariff.
No public debt, either by the General Government or by the States, except for objects of urgent necessity.
No assumption by the General Government of the debts of the States, either directly or indirectly, by a distribution of the proceeds of the public lands.
No extensive system of Internal Improvement by the General Government or by the States.
A constitutional barrier against improvident State loans.
The honest payment of our debts and the sacred preservation of the public faith.
A gradual return from a paper credit system.
No grants of exclusive charters and privileges by special legislation to banks.
No swindling corporations.
No connection between Church and State.
A preference for Democrats over Whigs for every office.
Assent in the rule of the majority in all cases of party discipline.
No proscription for honest opinions.
Fostering aid to public education.
A "progressive" reformation of all abuses.

TENNESSEE SQUIRE OF THE OLDE TIME.

There flourished for many years in a certain village in the good State of Tennessee, an eccentric fellow who rejoiced in the name of Peter Izard; for many years he filled the important office known in various parts of the Union as Magistrate, Alderman, or Justice of the Peace. We will now show you a sample of Squire Izard's mode of proceeding. A gentleman by the name of McMurrin, of this place, was riding through C——, where his horse lost a shoe! For replacing it, the blacksmith, whose name was Enos Bilbo, charged the cool sum of an eagle—or rather two sovereigns. Naturally indignant, our traveller refused to pay such an exorbitant demand, and he was arrested at the suit of the son of Vulcan. There being no other resource, Mr. McMurrin was escorted to the magistrate's office, back of the bar.

After being introduced into the most august presence of the Squire, and the charge stated, the following dialogue occurred:

"Well, sir, what's your name?"

"McMurrin, sir."

"Humph, Mr. Murran, no other name?"

"John McMurrin, sir."

"No Mr. Curran—no alias eh?"

"Of course I have not, sir—I have no need of one."

"Where do you live, Mr. Curran?"

"My name ain't Curran—I told you it is McMurrin."

Well, Mr. Merton, did you make any bargain for shoeing your horse?"

"Nothing."

"What is the—(using a bad word this time) only make signs for?"

"Only keeping the mosquitoes off to see what boat that was!"

Indianapolis, January 6, 1849.]

AN INCIDENT OR TWO.

Steamboats have their troubles as well as other folks. Like printers and doctors, they have to turn round very often for nothing. The "dear people," have been told it was no trouble to show goods, till they believe it. See what it's coming to.

On her last trip up the Missouri, the obliging Henry Bry was hailed by a green looking customer at an obscure landing, and round to, supposing he wanted to take a passage. The boat swung round, puffing, hoarse and impatient:

"Hallow, Captain."

"Coming aboard?"

"No, but I thought maybe somebody there might be traveling up to buy hemp, and I'd just ax you."

The Henry Bry gave a snort and a lunge enough to burst her boilers as she turned on her keel, and got under way again—the "great hanged" hemp man swearing that she had no accommodation about her.

Captain Luke had nearly forgotten the incident, when some distance from Glasgow, deponent saith not where—a man was observed standing on the river bank, beckoning as it seemed, most seemingly, first with one hand and then the other, beating the air before his face, and looking intently towards the boat. Again the polite Henry Bry, fetched a circuit of some half a mile, and came to:

"Hallow, stranger, what do you want?"

"Nothing."

"What is the—(using a bad word this time) only make signs for?"

"Only keeping the mosquitoes off to see what boat that was!"

Somebody gave a toast that evening—Hemp and mosquitoes—the worst suck on the river!—Glasgow News.

The Hebrew has a peculiar aptitude for managing money. Joseph was treasurer to Pharaoh, Daniel to Nebuchadnezzar, Mordocai to Artaxerxes, and Levi to Don Pedro, the cruel. The Moors, who first invaded Spain, had an Israelite for chancellor of the Exchequer; and a gentleman of the same nation now lends money to all the nations of the earth.

Good manners are the blossom of good sense, and it may be added, of good feeling too; if the law of kindness be written in the heart, it will lead to that disinterestedness in little as well as great things—that desire to oblige, and attention to the gratification of others, which is the foundation of good manners.

We are reproached with forgetting others; we forget ourselves a thousand times more. We remember what we hear, see, and read, often accurately; not so with what we feel—that is faint and uncertain in its record. Memory is the least egotistical of all our faculties.

ECONOMY—is generally despised as a low virtue, tending to make people ungenerous and selfish. This is true of avarice; but not so of economy. The man who is economical, is laying up the permanent power of being useful and generous.

If you cannot be happy in one way, be happy in another; and this faculty of disposition wants but little aid from philosophy, for health and good humor are almost the whole affair. Many run about after felicity like an absent minded man seeking for his hat—while it is on his head or in his hand.

"You didn't go to Cork, to-day, Paddy?" "Och, no," said Paddy; I heard a gentleman say there would be an eclipse on the moon here-to-night, and I stayed to see it."
